Introduction

The Policy on Sensitive Technology Research and Affiliations of Concern provides that research grant applications submitted by a university or affiliated research institution to the federal granting councils— the Canadian Institutes of Health Research, the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada — and the Canada Foundation for Innovation that involve research to advance a sensitive technology research area will not be funded if any of the researchers involved in activities supported by the grant are affiliated with, or in receipt of funding or in-kind support, from a university, research institute or laboratory connected to military, national defence, or state security entities that could pose a risk to Canada’s national security.

This policy includes two lists that only operate in conjunction — a list of Sensitive Technology Research Areas and a list of Named Research Organizations, provided below.

To ensure compliance with the Policy of Sensitive Technology Research and Affiliations of Concern, all researchers involved in activities funded by a research grant that advance a sensitive technology research area must review the list of Named Research Organizations. This list is composed of research organizations and institutions that pose the highest risk to Canada’s national security due to their direct, or indirect connections with military, national defence, and state security entities.

The list of Named Research Organizations will be updated regularly to address evolving threats to Canada’s national security, which can originate from anywhere in the world.

Researchers should keep in mind that institutions that are not included on the list may still pose a risk. As a best practice, researchers are encouraged to apply due diligence practices to mitigate risks that may be associated with any collaboration or partnership in a sensitive technology research area. Researchers are also encouraged to transparently disclose their affiliations, funding, and in-kind support with their sponsoring institution and with their research team, to foster trust and to ensure the security of sensitive research from unwanted transfer of knowledge and technology.

Named Research Organizations List

Best efforts have been made to accurately convey the name of each research organization, however some of the organizations on this list exist officially only in a language other than English or French. Several organizations have names commonly used in English; these have been used wherever possible. Efforts have also been made to translate into French the names of the organizations from the these commonly used English names. The spelling of some names may vary in English and French from other existing translations.

The list of Named Research Organizations that follows is organized alphabetically based on the name of the university, research institute, or laboratory connected to military, national defence, or state security entities.
